Instructions

Instructions

Before you get started with the orientation, here are a few things you need to know.

- There are seven segments in this orientation. Each segment provides important information, so pay close attention.
- Your progress through the orientation will be monitored. You must view and complete each segment to successfully complete the orientation.
- There are quizzes at the end of each segment. Be sure to answer these questions.
- The orientation should take less than an hour or so to complete. But don't worry if you aren't able to finish it in one sitting. Your progress is saved and you can return to finish it later.

BEST PRACTICES

The Video Broadcast Classroom

Modules

The video broadcast modality enables colleges to reach students in remote areas. Each class consists of a group of students on campus and a group of students at a remote site. Classrooms are outfitted with video-broadcast equipment, which integrate the two locations and allow instructors to merge two or more sites for live instruction. In this course, we aim to educate you in effective practices for teaching in this modality.

To get started click on the Start Here button to familiarize yourself with the course and the Canvas environment.
